Clean up! Brighten up!
At this time of year this is good advice.

In many places a great amount of energy and enthusiasm is thrown into this work. Why not a campaign right here in Crossfield. Petition the Reeve to proclaim a holiday. Let the residents get organized, and let us clean up the whole village.

We are satisfied it only wants someone to start the rake going to give us the brightest cleanest and most prosperous looking village in the province.

W. A. Wolegde was a visitor to Calgary on Wednesday.

Mr. Burton Effrick, of Irricana Mission, will preach here next Sunday evening. Mr. Berry will go to Irricana.

We are pleased to see a few more trees have been planted within the past week. If there were more took up this idea it would greatly add to the improvement of the village, besides being pleasant to look upon.

Some of our readers may be glad to learn that Dr. M. E. Church, Osteopathic Physician, has resumed his practice in the New Underwood Block, Calgary after a year of rest and study.

All those who are interested in the game of Tennis are invited to attend a meeting to be held in Laut Bros' Store, on Friday evening, the 1st of May, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a Tennis Club.

The "Calgary-in-Carstairs" Milliners, Mesdames Stow & Lynch deLong will be in Crossfield again on Saturday, May 2nd, with a very choice selection of beautiful Hags for ladies and children. Be sure and see their display at Wm. Urquhart's Store this Saturday.

Dr. Jackson, Dentist, is pleased to hear that the citizens of Crossfield have been informed through the press by Dr. Lackner, that he had no association with him whatever. This information is very gratifying to Dr. Jackson who is relieved of a rather unpleasant duty, which is owing to the public. Dr. Jackson will make his regular visits to Crossfield as usual every Wednesday at the Alberta Hotel.

The annual anniversary service of the local lodge I.O.O.F. was held at the Union Church, on Sunday last. There was a good attendance of members present. The centre of the church was reserved for the brethren, the remainder of building being well filled with the general public. The Rev. J. P. Berry took his text from Luke 10-28. The rev. gentleman gave a brief summary of the objects of the brotherhood, using the story of the good Samaritan as an illustration for his subject.

FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Dispelles Backache, Headaches and Dizziness.

Philo, Ohio.—"I would be very grateful if I failed to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise it deserves, for I have taken it at different times and it always relieved me when other medicines failed, and when I hear a woman complain I always recommend it. Last winter I was attacked with a severe case of organic weakness. I had backache, pains in my hips and over my kidneys, headache, dizziness, lassitude, had no energy, limbs ached and I was always tired. I was hardly able to do my housework. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on one other occasion, and it had helped me so I took it again and it has built me up, until now I feel like a new woman. You have my hearty consent to use my name and testimonial in any way and I hope it will benefit suffering women."—Mrs. ORELLA TURNER, 421 S. Wayne St., Philo, Ohio.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Rather Nasty

"Today makes twenty-five years since you and I have worked together, Tim," said Old Nigard, the manufacturer. "And I have done well—very well."

"Yes," answered Tim, thinking of his miserable thirty bob a week.

"Now, here is a little present that will please the wife and kiddies," said Old Nigard, pressing a large blue envelope on his old workman.

"I'm sure, boss, it's very good—"

"Tut-tut! Don't mention it! Just cutting home, and not another word."

With visions of hankies, crisp and crumpled, and of the gift, and, amidst great excitement, opened it in the presence of his numerous family. To his amazement, out fell a portrait of his old gunner.

"Well, Tim," said Old Nigard, "you must be missing 'how did you like my little gift?'"

"Oh," said Tim laconically, "it's just like yer!"

When a mother detects from the worms and fretting of a child that the worms are troubling it, she can procure no better remedy than Miller's Worm Powders, which are guaranteed to totally expel worms from the system. They may cause vomiting, but this need cause no anxiety, because it is but a manifestation of their thorough work. No worms can long exist where these Powders are used.

Efficiency was the topic that was being discussed at a banquet in a Washington club the other night when Congressman John G. Rothermel, of Reading, was reminded of a declaration of an esteemed party named James.

The former J. James attended a circus some time since, where one of the big features of the show was a bear-bait lion tamer. Entering the ring, followed by the lion, the fair charmer placed a lump of sugar between her pretty lips, which the lion looked from her with his teeth. Instantly James sat upright and began to take notice.

"Great start, all right," he loudly shouted to the performer, "but I can do it too!"

"Of course," scornfully replied the girl, who didn't appreciate having her act minimized, "but do you really think you can?"

"Most assuredly," was the prompt rejoinder of James, "just as well as the lion."

Landlord—That fellow who just swagged past? Oh, that's Bill Brown an' he's a terror to automobilists. I tell you!

Guest—Aha! the village constable, eh?

Landlord—Worse; he's the only motor repair man within ten miles."

This is from Australia: "Gentlemen, a member of this house has taken advantage of my absence to tweak my nose behind my back. I hope that the next time he abuses me behind my back like a coward he will do it to my face like a man, and not to skulking into the thicket to assail a gentleman who isn't present to defend himself."

Struck by Lightning

Neely describes the celebrity of Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor. "Respects a wart," takes off a callous, roots out a corn without pain, by itself. "When you use Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor, there is no fear, no harm, no loss of time. Satisfaction guaranteed with every 25c bottle of Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor."

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia.

Ready for the Voyage

"Are there enough lifeboats for all the passengers?"

"No."

"Then there life preservers for everybody?"

"Well, hasn't anything been done in preparation for shipwreck?"

"Well, the band has learned to play 'Nearer, My God to Thee' in the dark."

Tom's Favorite Diet

Dear old Uncle Podger was standing his nephew, Tom, a dinner and a seat at the pantomime to celebrate the last night of the young hopeful's holidays.

Tom had made the most of his opportunities, had dragged through the dinner to the bitter end and had arrived at a stage at which the only thing left him was to envy the candles with his double outfit of storage room.

The waiter brought the bill, which his uncle paid with a ten-pound note. Tom missed this part of the performance, and only woke up as the waiter returned with a plateful of soybeans and half-crowns.

Tom was galvanized into life:

"Uncle," he gasped, "I should like a plate of that as well."

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health

Giving Blood

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have cringes of rheumatism or the sharp, stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has assuaged your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood, your system needs in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes healthy, firm, women and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. Geo. Burns, Albany, N.Y., writes: "I was terribly run down and so weak that I could hardly drag myself around. I was so nervous that I was afraid to walk across the floor for fear I would fall. Our family doctor treated me without success and finally I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Gradually they brought me back to good health and now I am as well as ever. I was and have every confidence in recommending these Pills to other sufferers."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or can be had by mail for 60 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Richard Le Gallienne, the poet, was talking in New York about the hard work of a poet's job.

"Poetry is popular," he said, "but there's no money in it. Have you heard the latest about the well-known poet, Pindar Ode?"

"Mrs. Ode nudged her husband in the dead of night and whispered: 'Pindar, wake up! There's burglars in the house!'"

"Well, what of it?" said Pindar Ode, sleepily. "Let them find out their mistake for themselves."

Shiloh

The family remedy for Coughs and Colds

A teacher trying to impress on her pupils the rightness of kindness toward all animals, took them for a walk to bring the lesson home to them.

Hearing a scream from little Johnny, she added: "What's the matter, Johnny?"

"I've been stung by a hornet," was the fearful response, "and I'm afraid I've hurt the poor thing."

Teacher—Tommy, cat you spell fur?

Tommy—Yes, ma'am. Fur.

Teacher—That's right. Now, Johnny, can you tell me what fur is?

Johnny—Yes, ma'am. Fur is an awful long distance to go.

A disastrous colliery explosion took place on Tuesday at the New River Collieries, Eccles, West Virginia. Hopes for the rescue alive of the 203 miners entombed have been abandoned. Rescuers were unable to force their way to the sufferers. Fifty-nine men, all burned severely, were rescued alive from another shaft. This is the second largest disaster in the history of West Virginia mining.

THE GREAT PROBLEM

When a labor unionist sells his labor for twenty-five per cent. more than it is worth, he is a patriot.

When a farmer sells eggs and beef at twenty-five per cent. more than they are worth, he is two patriots.

When a manufacturer sells his wares, made by laborers who get twenty-five per cent. more than they are worth, to the farmer who is getting twenty-five per cent. more for his beef and eggs than they are worth, what profit should he charge?

Every correct solution gets a prize. Entries free—Canadian Courier.

The economical decoration of your home is largely a matter of knowing the right finishes to use.

For the exterior of your home there is no better paint than Sherwin-Williams Paint (Prepared) SWP. It is made of the purest of materials, combined in correct scientific proportions with the aid of special machinery. The result is a far spreading, long wearing paint in liquid form, all ready to apply.

For floors, the easiest finish to apply is S-W Inside Floor Paint, and this gives particularly good results even on old worn or discolored floors. On a good hardwood floor the best finish is S-W Mar-net, a hard-drying waterproof floor varnish.

For the walls of your home, while water paints, such as S-W Decortin, give pleasing effects, they have not the durability which means true economy, Sherwin-Williams Flat-tone is unquestionably the best paint for walls. It is an oil paint that dries with a soft, flat, velvety finish. It is very durable and can be washed with soap and water. S-W Flat-tone comes in twenty-four beautiful colors, the selection of expert decorators.

For the varnishing of interior work such as wainscoting, doors, furniture, etc., we recommend S-W Excello Varnish, or S-W Kopal, an old fashioned, general purpose varnish, which can be used inside and outside and is just the thing for varnished woodwork in kitchens, bathrooms, or for front doors, porch ceilings, etc. For floors use S-W Mar-net, a special waterproof floor varnish, will not turn white when water is spilled on it, nor does it show scratches and heel marks readily.

We can take care of your every paint and varnish need. Drop in and discuss your paint and varnish problems with us.

THE WHITE CAT

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

"The other party came within range of vision. It was Davidson."

"All there were, Mr. Schwartz," he replied. "We were nearly flurried before the woman made a bolt." He held out a small object on the palm of his hand.

"I would rather have done it alone, Mr. Schwartz," he said. "I found this ring in Briggs' pocket this morning. It belongs to the girl."

Schwartz swore and, picking up the ring, held it to the light. Then he made an angry motion to throw it out of the window, but it fell into his vest pocket instead.

"You're poor soul, Davidson," he said, with a snarl. "If she hasn't got them, then Wardrop has. Tell McPeckly I want to see him."

Davidson left for I heard the door close. Schwartz held the ring to the light. "Looked up my watch. The light was almost up."

A fresh burst of noise came from below. "I frayed," said Davidson, and looked down at the lower windows; they were still closed and shuttered. When I raised my head, Davidson was in the room across, I was amazed to see a second figure in the room—a woman—had not seen her. He stood with his back to her, looking at the ring in his hand. The woman had thrown her veil back, but she could see nothing of her face as I stood. She looked small and pale, and she was looking right, and she wore black. She must have said something just then, very quietly, for Schwartz was suddenly wheeled on her. I had a clear view of him, and if ever guilt, rage and while tipped her head back, her man's face it showed on his. He replied—a half dozen words in a low tone and made a motion as if he were in a chair. She paid no attention.

I have no idea how long a time they talked. The fresh outbreak of noise below made it impossible to hear what they said, and always there was the maddening fact that I could not see her face. I thought of Mrs. Fleming, but this woman seemed younger and more slender, and she was smiling. I imagined, but she stood immobile, scornful, watching him. She seemed to have made a request, and the man's evasions moved her no whit.

It may have been only two or three minutes, but it seemed long. Schwartz laid down on the rug. Whatever it was, and I was shouting out the window I supposed he was telling her he was worth what she was worth. Even then she did not turn toward me. I could not see even her profile.

"What happened next was so unexpected that it remains little more than a picture in my mind. The man threw out his hands, as if to show he could not or would not accede to her request. He was flushed with rage, and even at that distance I saw the scar on the forehead stand out like a welt. The next moment I saw the woman raise her right hand, with something in it. I fell rather than ran down the floor below and got to the street. I found the girl to the White Cat without trouble. The inner gate was locked, so Burton had said he would leave it, and from the steps of the club I could hear laughter and the refrain of a popular song."

Burton was there in the kitchen, with two other men when I did not recognize each one holding a stein of beer. Burton had two, and he held one out to me as I stood trying to get my bearings.

"You win," he said, "Although I'm a hard-working journalist and need the money, I won't lie. This is Osborne of the Star and McFie of the Eagle, Mr. Knox. They heard about this here, and I had told the story there would have been a panic. What's the matter with you?"

"For God's sake, Burton," I panted, "lets get upstairs quietly. I didn't fire any shot. There's a woman dead up there!"

With characteristic politeness the reporters took the situation quietly. They went through the kitchen cautiously as we could. With the door closed, however, we three cautiously ascended the way up the stairs to the room where I had found Fleming's body and where I expected to find her.

On the landing at the top of the stairs I came face to face with Davidson, the detective, and before me Judge McCreedy. Davidson was trying to open the door of the room where the body had been, and he was skeleton key. But it was bolted inside. When I had got the door open and I felt Schwartz's heavy hand at my throat I drew a long breath of relief. Burton found the electric switch and turned on the light. And then—I could hardly believe my senses. The room was empty, but I picked up a small nickel-plated revolver from the floor.

Burton, after all, was the quickest of us. He was the first to open one of the two doors in the room, revealing a shallow closet with papered walls and a row of hooks. The other door stuck tight. One of the men pointed to the floor. A bit of black cloth had wedged it from the other side. Our combined efforts got it open at last, and we crowded in the doorway, looking down a night of stairs.

Huddled just below us, her head at our feet, was the body of the missing woman.

"My God," Burton said hoarsely, "it's her!"

We got her into the room and on the couch before I knew her. Her fair hair had fallen loose, and she was one and one, thin hand clutched still at the bosom of her gown. It was Ellen Butler.

"She's got about an hour, I should say," said one of the newspaper men. "See if Gray is around, will you, Jim. He's mostly here Saturday night."

Whatever surprise Gray may have felt at seeing a woman dead on the couch, he made no comment. He said she might live six hours, but the end was certain. We made a hospital and, with the clang of his bell as it turned the corner and hurried away the White Cat drops out of this story, so far as action is concerned.

Three detectives and as many reporters hurried Schwartz's body to the night and the rest was to get his story. But he remained in hiding. Even in her agony Ellen Butler's hate had carried her through the doorway after him, to collapse on the stairs. A night watchman in felt shoes admitted me and took me upstairs.

The cover was drawn up to the injured woman's chest, when she was folded neatly back. Her face was gathered up in a shaggy line. She was breathing slowly, but regularly. Her equipment was relaxed. She was more restless than I had ever seen her. As I stood at the foot of the bed and looked at her I knew that she was surely as dead, was coming to life, was welcome.

His wife and Fred were there. As he sat there beside the bed I saw by his face that he was repeating and said about Ellen Butler. Once she asked for water without opening her eyes, and Fred slipped a bit of ice between her white lips. Later in the night she looked up for an instant at

"He struck my hand," she said, with difficulty.

His morning she was rallying a little from the shock. I got up to take Ellen home, and I took her place by the bed.

I hoped to get some sort of statement before the injured woman was taken to the operating room; but she lay in a stupor, and I had to give up the idea. It was two days before I got her disposition, and in that time I had learned many things.

RECENTLY EXPENSIVE

NOW SO EASY

On Monday I took Margery to Bellwood. She had received the news about Mrs. Butler more calmly than I had expected.

"I do not think she was quite sane, poor woman," she said, with a shudder. "She had said that the man was with a great deal of trouble. But how strange—a murder and an attempt at murder—at that little 'club' in a week!"

She did not connect the two, and I left the thing rest at that. Once on the train she asked, "Don't you think that she had a sort of homicidal mania, and that she tried to kill me with chloroform?"

"I hardly think so," I returned evasively. "I am inclined to think some one actually got in over the porch roof."

"It is very comforting to have a friend one can rely on," she said, and the little bit of kindness went to my head. If she had not got a clinder in my eye at that ghastly moment, when I'm afraid I would figuratively have trampled Wardrop underfoot right there."

We found Miss Letitia in the lower hall and Heppie on her knees with a hatchet between them at a man's doorway.

"Here, give it to me," Miss Letitia demanded as she stepped in the doorway. "Like as not it's a mistake—bang—but the expression was so genuine, and it's a pity—crash! Something broke inside."

Huddled just below us, her head at our feet, was the body of the missing woman.

"My God," Burton said hoarsely, "it's her!"

We got her into the room and on the couch before I knew her. Her fair hair had fallen loose, and she was one and one, thin hand clutched still at the bosom of her gown. It was Ellen Butler.

"She's got about an hour, I should say," said one of the newspaper men. "See if Gray is around, will you, Jim. He's mostly here Saturday night."

Whatever surprise Gray may have felt at seeing a woman dead on the couch, he made no comment. He said she might live six hours, but the end was certain. We made a hospital and, with the clang of his bell as it turned the corner and hurried away the White Cat drops out of this story, so far as action is concerned.

Three detectives and as many reporters hurried Schwartz's body to the night and the rest was to get his story. But he remained in hiding. Even in her agony Ellen Butler's hate had carried her through the doorway after him, to collapse on the stairs. A night watchman in felt shoes admitted me and took me upstairs.

The cover was drawn up to the injured woman's chest, when she was folded neatly back. Her face was gathered up in a shaggy line. She was breathing slowly, but regularly. Her equipment was relaxed. She was more restless than I had ever seen her. As I stood at the foot of the bed and looked at her I knew that she was surely as dead, was coming to life, was welcome.

His wife and Fred were there. As he sat there beside the bed I saw by his face that he was repeating and said about Ellen Butler. Once she asked for water without opening her eyes, and Fred slipped a bit of ice between her white lips. Later in the night she looked up for an instant at

"He struck my hand," she said, with difficulty.

His morning she was rallying a little from the shock. I got up to take Ellen home, and I took her place by the bed.

I hoped to get some sort of statement before the injured woman was taken to the operating room; but she lay in a stupor, and I had to give up the idea. It was two days before I got her disposition, and in that time I had learned many things.

"I do not think she was quite sane, poor woman," she said, with a shudder. "She had said that the man was with a great deal of trouble. But how strange—a murder and an attempt at murder—at that little 'club' in a week!"

She did not connect the two, and I left the thing rest at that. Once on the train she asked, "Don't you think that she had a sort of homicidal mania, and that she tried to kill me with chloroform?"

"I hardly think so," I returned evasively. "I am inclined to think some one actually got in over the porch roof."

"It is very comforting to have a friend one can rely on," she said, and the little bit of kindness went to my head. If she had not got a clinder in my eye at that ghastly moment, when I'm afraid I would figuratively have trampled Wardrop underfoot right there."

We found Miss Letitia in the lower hall and Heppie on her knees with a hatchet between them at a man's doorway.

"Here, give it to me," Miss Letitia demanded as she

A Lesson in Morals

Mother—Now, Willie, you told me a falsehood. Do you know what happens to little boys who tell falsehoods?

Willie ( sheepishly )—No, mam.

Mother—Why, a big black mark with only one eye in the center of it. And the water stood silently by his side. At last, in despair, the diner slumped his finger in the middle of one page and said:

"Bring me some of that."

"Oh, no!" replied the waiter, "they eat mayonnaise dressing, sir."

"I know that, my man," snorted the countryman. "I can read."

"But, m'lord," said the waiter apologetically, "what will you have it on?"

The diner glared. "On a plate of course, you idiot!" he roared. "Do you feed your guests in tongs at this restaurant?"—Top Notch.

An Ordered

The menu of a certain London restaurant, it contains several pages of various dishes, all classified, mostly with weird French names.

The country visitor eyed up and down, but could make nothing of it. And the waiter stood silently by his side. At last, in despair, the diner slumped his finger in the middle of one page and said:

SPENT HER MONEY FOR NO BENEFIT

THEN MISS J. M. GODIN USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

And Her Kidney Disease and Female Weakness Disappeared—She is Now a Strong, Healthy Woman.

Mission, Gloucester Co., N.B. (Special)—"I have been suffering from the kidneys ever since I was a child," says Miss J. M. Godin of this place. "When I grew to womanhood I was suffering from female weakness, so I tried several kinds of medicine, spending a good many dollars for nothing."

"Last winter I became so weak I was on the point of giving up and could not sleep at night and could hardly get up the stairs without having palpitation of the heart and feeling quite exhausted."

"Reading of symptoms of Kidney Disease in Dodd's Almanac, I soon found out my case was similar, so I sent at once for four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I began to feel a change at the very beginning, for I slept well the very first night. These four boxes did me more good than all the medicine I had taken before, and I have remained strong ever since."

"I am now as well as can be. All women who suffer a cold look to the kidneys. They are the main spring of health. Keep the kidneys strong by using Dodd's Kidney Pills and they will take care of the rest of the body."

"Talk While the Talking is Good!"

"Let us talk a lot now, before the rain comes," says John Hedges. "It does more good than afterward."

"Afterwards," as another observed: "Though I speak, my grief is not assuaged; and though I forbear, what am I eased?"

Powdery Scab of Potatoes.

Some time ago it was found that there existed in the eastern provinces of Canada, viz: Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec a disease of the potato tuber known as Corky or better Powdery Scab, which had probably been present, at least in some localities, for a number of years, but not distinguished from the disease known as Common Scab.

While this disease, under Canadian conditions, has so far only in one instance given indications of being more destructive than Common Scab, it is nevertheless a very undesirable malady to have permanently established in potato growing land. As a result of the discovery of Powdery Scab, the United States' authorities, through fear of introducing the disease, have enacted that potatoes shall not enter the United States except under a rigorous system of certification, which includes a certificate to the effect that the potatoes were raised in an area in which neither Potato Canker nor Powdery Scab exists. If the export with the United States is to be regained in face of the existing regulations the methods directed towards the eradication of the disease must be followed intelligently and in a thorough spirit of co-operation.

In order to familiarize the farmers of Canada with this disease Mr. J. W. Eastham, Chief Assistant Botanist of the Central Experimental Farm has prepared a comprehensive circular entitled Powdery Scab of Potatoes, which is Farmers' Circular No. 5 of the Division of Botany and is available to all who make application for it to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The nature, symptoms, and preventive methods are fully outlined and the following summary of recommendations for control of Powdery Scab are given:-

1. Use only "seed" from a crop free from the disease.
2. Disinfect such "seed" to destroy any stray disease germs.
3. Use land known to be free from the disease. In most areas this will have to be land not previously planted to potatoes.
4. Do not plant potatoes again in land which has shown the disease. If possible seed such land to grass.
5. Isolate the crop from any field showing the disease, and take all possible precautions to avoid the spread of the disease to other potatoes.
6. Pay special attention to the cleaning and, if necessary, disinfection of implements which may carry the disease.

7. Legislation regarding the enrolment of all stallions standing for public service is now in effect in all the provinces of Canada, except New Brunswick and Quebec. Provision is made in New Brunswick for registration, the object in view, apparently, being to have a record of the stallions in each locality. Legislation, in the other provinces, however, goes further, as it provides for enrolment, and issue certificates, according to the pedigree. In Manitoba inspection of stallions for soundness will be compulsory under the new act.
